STATE BANK & TRUST COMPANY

RICHMOND, KENTUCKY

DO YOUR DUTY.

Is Kentucky a Democratic State, or a doubtful State? Is it one of those States which can be always relied upon to cast its vote for democratic principles of independence and for the interests of the people or is it, as some of the National Republican leaders like to claim, one of those doubtful States, which may now and then be garnered by the agents of the big interests and swung by them into the money column?

Now is the time for all Kentucky Democrats to settle that question in a manner that will leave no room for doubt. On November 2nd, the voters of Kentucky will choose a Governor and a complete set of State officers to guide the destinies of the State for the ensuing four years. Let there be no hair-line decision at the polls. The vote in the Democratic primary showed how many Democrats there are in Kentucky. It showed conclusively that Kentucky is a Democratic State, that it is, in fact overwhelmingly Democratic.

It is now the duty of every Democrat in the State to cast his vote for the entire State ticket on November 2nd. Let us take nothing for granted. The eyes of the whole nation are on Kentucky. Three years ago the nation, disgusted at Republican misrule, arose and turned over the stewardship to the Democratic party. Today the Republicans are hoping against hope for a ray of light. They want to shove the thin edge of the wedge in, somewhere. Let the Democrats of this State prevent its being slipped between their own ribs.

If there is a small majority for Stanley and the rest of the Democratic ticket in this election, the Republican leaders will claim that the country is returning to the Republican fold. They will be bled up to redouble their efforts to regain control of the nation in 1916.

But, a good, old-fashioned, smashing Democratic majority in this year's State election will break their hearts. It will have a powerful moral effect on politics from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The Democrats of Kentucky must stand shoulder against the common enemy. They should forget the disappointments that came to some of them in the primary. Last year, after Beckham beat him in the primary for the nomination for the United States Senate, Stanley got behind Beckham and stamped the State from one end to the other in Beckham's behalf. The men who supported McKimsey and McDermott in the primary should follow the example set by Stanley and show that, in spite of differences within the party, all Kentucky Democrats stand together when fighting Republicans.

A BEAUTIFUL THOUGHT.

The keynote of the ideals of Government that have moved A. O. Stanley during his public career were voiced in a few words by Stanley himself in an extemporaneous speech he delivered at the State Fair in Louisville on September 16th. The gubernatorial candidate was speaking of good roads and during the course of his speech said:

"What has preserved this government for 150 years or more? I will tell you: The plain citizen seated in a cane bottom chair on a rag carpet, before an open fire place, with a Bible on his knees and his family grouped about him, his head bowed, simply and reverently asking God to guide him through the night, and arising in the fear of that same God at dawn, to take up the simple tasks of the day. He votes with no thought of profit to himself, but for the good of his family and the honor of his country and the glory of his God. This is the power upon which this republic rests, and must forever rest."

SOMETIMES.

Sometimes! Yes, SOMETIMES an editor gets a kind word. In a letter from a prominent educator, well known in this community, the following words were read with pleasure:

"The Climax-Madisonian is one of the best county papers that I have ever read. I like your frank editorials on matters of public interest."

And this from another: "I see that my time is about up for your paper. You will please find enclosed money order for one dollar for which please renew my subscription for another year. I don't want to miss a copy for it is like receiving a letter from home and friends."

If the community will boost instead of kicking the local papers they will have more heart to put into their work and will be able to do better work for this city, county and state.

A GOOD CITIZEN.

"How is this for a definition of what constitutes a good citizen, asks the Todd County Times: A man who wants to see the very best roads leading from the very best schools, churches and lodges, and who is willing to do his very best to secure all of them for all the people; who wants to see the very best educational advantages given free to the poorest child, and doesn't kick at paying his just part of the taxation necessary to obtain them; a man who is grateful for what the community has in years gone by done for him, or may have in doing now, and is willing to demonstrate that gratitude by doing all he can for the community in question."

Carnival Here.

The Geo. Reynolds World's Greatest Shows are here for one week's engagement. The show comes here from Lexington on their way to the Chattanooga Fair. This is said to be one of the best shows on the road and everyone who attended the ground show it is the cleanest carnival attraction show that has ever played this city. Everyone was spellbound and amazed when Mr. Matt Gray made his dive, leaving the apex of a tower 110 feet high backwards making a double somersault and landing in a tank containing but four feet of water. The most remarkable performance ever presented everyone says.

Some Tater.

Mr. June McKinney brought to this office last Friday a rather unusual potato. The "spud" is eight inches long and ten inches in circumference, and near where it grew on the vine as a goose egg. It is not wholly a freak of nature, but has created considerable comment by all who have seen it. It is surely some tater, and would make an ordinary family a meal, provided they had anything to eat besides potatoes.

Urgent Warning.

Owing to the prevalence of diphtheria raging in many sections of the State, an urgent warning has been issued by the Kentucky State Board of Health, sounding a note of warning to parents, teachers and all other lovers of children of the great danger of the disease, which is likely to increase in cool weather, and again calls attention to the recognized means of prevention. Parents or those who have children should carefully look after the children and take every precautionary measure to guard against the spread of the disease. Madison county is very fortunate, as the children of the county have escaped so far, but in many counties in the State an epidemic of the disease is raging, and the local boards of health have forbidden crowds from congregating.

Nine Babies in 24 Months.

About 15 months ago a Mrs. Drury, of Spencer county, gave birth to five children, 3 of whom are still living and healthy. Two weeks ago she presented her husband with four more little ones—making nine she has had in less than two years. This is a little ahead of anything we have heard of before and proves that while Spencer county may not be as productive agriculturally as some other counties, she certainly cannot be headed when it comes to raising children—Frankfort Courier.

This is a very prolific crop of babies, and there is no danger of race suicide ruining the country as long as babies are produced in such a wholesome manner. However, the above bears anything that has come to our notice. We knew of a young couple in Bourbon county who had been married five years and had thirteen children, and everybody thought they were doing pretty well, but the Spencer county couple surely will take the tie for babies.

A MOUNTAIN COURTSHIP

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The mountaineer and his wife had to go down the valley about a mile to see a sick neighbor, and I was left at the cabin with their daughter, a girl of eighteen. As soon as she had cleared off the supper table and while I sat on the doorstep smoking she put on a clean apron, arranged her hair a bit and blushed very red as she said to me:

"Him's comin' to see me tonight—and him's very sneaky and—and—"

"Do you mean that your young man is coming?" I asked.

"Reckon him is."

"And he's bashful?"

"Him can't scarcely abide dad and mam."

"I see. He'd be scared off if he found me sitting here. Well, I'll take a walk and be out of the way."

"No, no, no! You're perfectly proper. I'll go out and sit down on the log, and you stay right here."

"Oh, can she do it? Well, don't you mind me in the least."

The log was only thirty feet away, and she hadn't been sitting there over five minutes when "him" appeared. He had probably been in hiding somewhere. All I could see was that he was a young man, very bashful and awkward. He sat down about ten feet away from her, and it was about five minutes before either spoke.

"Who's him?" queried Jim as he nodded his head in my direction.

"Stranger, gwine further up," she answered. "You hain't no call to be skeered of him nor nobody."

"Who's skeered?"

"Reckon you is."

"Shoot! Never was skeered in all my life. Linda, does your old dad like me?"

"Reckon he do."

"Reckon she do."

"And, Linda?"

He stopped there for a long, long time, and Linda coughed and giggled over his embarrassment. By and by she said:

"Dad says you come powerful nigh killin' a bar last week."

No reply.

"Mam says you took up them ten acres of land above Parkers."

No reply.

"Has you lost your tongue, Jim?" she asked after a long silence.

"Gwine not, I was thinkin'," he replied as he heaved a deep sigh.

"Reckon I know what 'twas. Te-he-he!"

"Reckon you don't?"

"Gwine I do. Dad likes you, mam likes you, and I—"

That log suddenly contracted again and brought them close together, and Jim's arm stole around Linda's waist as he finished the sentence for her with:

"And we's gwine to be jined in the fall and live on them acres! Linda, if him wasn't back then in that doap I'd shorely hug you, I would."

I got out of "that doap" and took a long walk, and if Jim didn't take advantage of the occasion Linda's looks belied her when I returned.

The girl gave me good night and passed to her room, and a little later the old folks arrived back.

"Stranger, was that a feller yere a-sparkin' Linda?" whispered the father as they sat down beside me.

"Of co'se there was—of co'se," said the wife.

"There was a young man here," I replied.

"Did Linda call him Jim?"

"She did."

"Of co'se she did—of co'se," added the wife.

"Did they sot together?"

"Yes, on the log."

"Would you say, stranger—would you say that that was lyar?" asked the husband.

"Why, I sat there smoking and looking into the laurels, and I neither heard nor saw much. By and by I got up and walked away."

"Of co'se he did—of co'se," said the wife.

"Yes, he un would git up and walk away," sighed the husband.

"Would you like Jim for a son-in-law?" I asked after a bit.

"Stranger," replied the man as he laid aside his pipe so as to have both hands free to gesture with, "that yere young man has killed a bar with a knife."

"And a whoppin' big bar at that," added the wife.

"He has shot three wildcats, sub."

"Shot three and skeered off a fourth."

"And he has swum the Cumberland river, sub."

"And it was in flood too."

"And he has killed mo' coons and foxes and possums in the last two y'ars, sub, than any two men in the state."

"Of co'se he has—of co'se."

"And he made the elephant run when the last circus cum along, sub."

"And it was a whopper of an elephant, too—for suah it was."

"And, sub," continued the husband as he stood on his feet, "that yere Jim can outtholler, outrun, outwrestle, outfight and outwit any critter of his age fur fifty miles around."

"Of co'se he kin—of co'se," added the wife as she also stood up.

"And, sub, in a y'ar or two mo' we ar gwine to send him to the legislature, and he's gwine to swell around these mountains with a plug hat and a cane. All this, sub, and you axes me if I'd take him for a son-in-law."

"Of co'se we would—of co'se," said the wife.

Big Meeting.

The Central Kentucky Fox Hunters' Association is holding its annual meeting at Winston Estill county, this week. The meeting will probably be the most largely attended of any within the history of the Association. All day Sunday members and their dogs were passing through this city on the way to the chase, which began Monday. Many handsome prizes will be given to winning dogs. Madison county is well represented at the meeting.

Second Crop.

One day last week Mr. Jerry Newby, of the Baldwin neighborhood, brought to this office several apples of the Carolina Red June variety, which were of fair size and the second crop gathered from the trees this year. Mr. Newby informed us that the trees were young and the first crop produced this year was a splendid one, and not long after the crop had again gathered, the trees began to bloom again, and the second crop, was a fairly good one.

Tip For Society Editors

Society editors may find inspiration in the following from the Rushville News: "The bride and groom presented a regal spectacle, never equaled since the proud Cleopatra sailed down the perfumed, lotus-bearing Nile. The glided pageant to meet Mate Anthony, while all the world stood aghast at the unheard of triumph. To describe the bride's costume begets the English language; and the imagination fails faint and feeble before the Herculean task. She was gorgeously arrayed in a calico house dress, and a pair of lace curtains floated like a dream about her figure."

Brother Turley's Hogs

Recently Mr. Wm. B. Turley, of this city, sold to a Tennessee party three fine blooded Red Berkshire hogs at a handsome figure. These hogs were exhibited at the Tennessee State Fair last week and won the first premium in their class. "Brother" surely raises some splendid swine, being the "McKee" of Madison county.

MRS. MELTON'S LETTER

To Tired Worn-out Mothers
Jackson, Miss.—"I shall feel repaid for writing this letter if I can help any tired, worn-out mother or housekeeper find health and strength as I have. I have a family of five, sew, cook and do my housework and I became very much run-down in health. A friend asked me to try Vinol. I did so and now am well and strong and my old time energy has been restored. Vinol has no superior as a tonic for worn-out, run-down, tired mothers or housekeepers."

Church Notes

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Next Sunday morning a service in honor of the "Bible, the World's Greatest Volume" will be held. All lovers of the Holy Book are urged to be present. At night the sermon which was to have been preached last Sunday to students will be delivered. All students and teachers are cordially invited to be present.

At the Christian Church Sunday morning a beautiful musical program was rendered. The pastor, Dr. E. B. Barnes, preached a special sermon, "The Fading Life," which has been most highly commended. In the evening the sermon was addressed to the students of the city, the same being largely attended.

The C. W. R. M. was held at the Christian church on Wednesday after noon last week, at which time the newly elected president, Mrs. J. R. Pates presided. The leader of the evening was Mrs. N. B. Deatherage. The program was excellent, the feature of the meeting being the presence of Dr. E. B. Barnes and Dr. C. K. Marshall, the former giving a graphic account of his trip to California and the National Convention. The hostess of the day were Mrs. John Baldwin and Mrs. N. B. Deatherage.

M. S. Clark, Pastor.

UNION MEETING.

At the Christian church Sunday night the ministers of the city united in a most interesting meeting, the occasion being the distribution of some bibles by the Gideon Society. Mr. Pritchett, of New York, was present representing the society and sang a solo with much expression. Another musical feature of the evening was a quintette. The Misses Telford rendered a harp, violin and cello number. The music of the choir was unusually good. Revs. Telford, Clark, Reynolds and Bruce gave entertaining talks on the bible and the beneficent results from the custom of the Gideons in placing them in the hotels and boarding houses. After the meeting, a large number of bibles were placed in the rooms of the hotels and boarding houses of the city.

The Texas sweet potato crop will amount to 10,000,000 bushels this year. But residents of that expansive State are merely irritated by such diminutiveness. They say the figure should be ten times larger.

Mrs. W. T. McMillan has purchased ten acres of land just east of Springfield, Ky., for $4,000, which she will probably convert into building lots, although this tract is under cultivation.

At the Nebraska State Fair there were 1,800 head of swine exhibited, Poland Chinas and Durocs making up the bulk of the show.
